

3rd Short course in Microvascular techniques

The Federation for Head and Neck Oncology announces the third hands on microvascular course exclusively for its members. This two-day program will allow interested participants to gain insights in microvascular techniques. It is intended for surgeons who wish to start or assist microvascular free flap reconstruction at their center.

Background:

Proficiency in free flap reconstruction is necessary to offer state of the art treatment for head neck cancers. To achieve good cosmetic results and better quality of life, it is imperative to have a trained microvascular surgeon as a part of the operative team. This short course aims at introducing basic microvascular techniques to the head and neck surgeon. It will be beneficial for individuals who want to start free flap reconstruction or want to assist their microvascular surgeon
